When intelligent people struggle with reading, writing, and spelling they may be dyslexic. Dyslexia refers to differences in how the brain decodes language and number sequences. It is more common than we think.

How do we know if we are dyslexic? What practical steps can we take to understand what works best in our learning?

This is a free informative and interactive session for parents/careivers, whanau and others who live with people with dyslexia. This session will inspire dyslexic people and their families to acheive their full potential.
